Forest owners invited to field day with natural resource experts

Family forest landowners have a unique opportunity to spend a day in the woods with natural resource experts at the Idaho-Washington Forest Owners Field Day on June 21, 2014.

Classes and activities will include topics on forest health, wildlife habitat, soils, fire protection, tree and shrub identification, native plants, weeds, timber and non-timber products.

The educational event is packed with practical information for any woodland owner large or small. Forest owners are encouraged to join the more than 10,500 satisfied families who already have experienced Field Day.
